Scrum Tools | 2009

1 March, 2009 · 24 Comments

Scrum Tools are a topic that is very important for the readers of my blog. We will continue to write reviews every couple of weeks this year.

Tools « Scrum 4 You

Please, use a task board and post its. At least for 3 Sprints. Then ask the team, if they want something else.

Never!!!! use a electronic tool in the Sprint Planning Meetings. It is too slow. Maybe we do have in the future electronic post-its 😊 But till then. Do not do it!*

If you want to manage distributed Teams: Use a task board and try web-cams. If this is not sufficient – there are nice tools, but I can not really recommend one, as I do not know your special needs.

*One is better in collaboration, one is better in creating reports and tracking. I have seen a very nice new open source tool that was done by C.E.S.A.R. on the CMMI workshop in Recife two weeks ago. The name is FireScrum.
(<http://www.firescrum.com/>).*

It is still in progress and maybe you want to spent your time with changing this tool according to your needs rather than configuring a costly state of the art Scrum Tool. Well – they are very good – but most teams do not need them.

Distributed Teams needs first communication, communication, and communication.
